temporary assignments

At various times in my work life I've partnered with professional staffing agencies to fill in gaps between career and life changes.

I enjoy these partnerships and they afford me opportunities to meet new people and gain experience in a diverse array of professional settings.

I often learn new skills and new things about myself by widening my experience beyond my established career field.

This reference lists some of the organizations I've been assigned to and some of the skills incorporated into those assignments.
